George Says He's Been in Tight Places Before and Puiled Through.

NOT WORRYING THIS TIME.

Retains Counsel to Fight Two Suits Brought by Bowers, Who Claims the Woman in the Case.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL. New York, May 3.-It was stated at the Hotel Gerard to-night that Mr. and Mrs. George M. Pullman are making preparations to go abroad within a very few weeks. This is a sudden change of plans, for they had intended to spend the summer at Deal

Mr. and Mrs. Pullman would neither affirm nor deny the rumor. The report is doubly interesting in view of the couple's present mairimonial complications. The Pullmans to-day retained Howe & Hummel to defend the two suits brought against them by Frederick V. Bowers-one against Pullman to recover $100,000 for the alleged alienation of Mrs. Bowers's affections; the other for absolute divorce.

"You can just bet your bottom dellar that we'll come out of this all right," said George Pullman this evening. "I've been in pretty tight places before, but I always managed to squeeze out, I'll do it again this time. Just you wait and see if I don't. That's all I'm going to say at present. Now, save yourself the trouble of putting questions, because I won't answer a single one of them."

And Pullman wouldn't, Asked again to reveal where and when he secured the divorce from his first wife, and also to make known where and when Mrs. Bowers got her severance of the matrimonial bonds which tied her to the composer, he refused

Attorney Hummel made this statement:

"None of the Pullmans has ever before been accussed of taking other mon's wives, and young Pullman has not taken the wife of Mr. Bowers or of any other man.

"While still in her teens, the present Mrs. George M. Pullman went through some sort of ceremony with Bowers, but so far as wifely duties are concerned, she was none to Mr. Bowers, the man who now claims to be her husband.

MUNICIPAL TOPICS DISCUSSED. Mr. McMath Addresses the Good Government Club.

The Good Government Club had an interesting session last night at its quarters at No. 272! Pine streat. The moot court which had been taiked of for the occasion was postponed until next Thursday, but the omission of this feature did not prevent the continuance of the weekly "school of instruction". This "school of instruction" consists of addresses by prominent citizens on topics that are newest and of most moment in city affairs. Robert E. McMath made the principal talk last evening. His remarks were devoted principally to the Belt wastebox ordinance, and to a discussion of what should be done with the surplusage of water revenue in the city treasury.

In the absence of the president of the club the vice president asked Chauncey I. Filley to take the chair, which he did. Mr. Filley announced that the most court had been postponed, but that he did not want Filley announced that the moot court had been postponed, but that he did not want to miss the fun which such a scheme promised. So he suggested that definite steps be taken to have the affair next Thursday. "The legal talent in our ranks can show us how not to do it, as well as can the City Hall gang. Likewise they can show us the easy way to do it if they want to." A committee of five was appointed to arrange the mock trial of the February Grand Jury. Four of this committee are lawyers. Concerning the $56,900 surplusage of water revenue, Mr. McMath argued that this belongs to the taxpayers of the city, and that it should be used to pay off the public debt.

Mr. Filley here asked if there was at presents a sinking fund which was accumulating, and with which it is purposed to build a hospital. The speaker responded that the provision for this fund was made in 1896. Now it amounts to $50,000, making the yearly growth $5,000. The amount necessary for a hospital, Mr. McGrath said, was shout $50,000. Hence, at this rate, the citizens of St. Louis would have to wait twelve years before they could desert the old structure at Seventeenth and Chestnut streets.

Haim's theater is in Heim Park. It is fifteen minutes' ride from the Fifth street terminal, and the Heim electric line management says it can haul 3,500 passengers in one hour. The hall is built on the plan of Convention Hall. There is not a pillar or a post in it. Inside it is a clean sweep of 130 feet across and 140 feet lengthwise. The floor is pitched with a drop of six feet. The sides may be either closed for had weather or taken down, in which case the inclosure is a handsome ironwork ceiling, permitting thorough ventilation. The building is of wood and stucco, costing 511,000 to build, and in general design is most pleasing to the eye.

"We will offer the hall for the conven-"We will offer the hall for the convention," said Mr. Helm, "and we are confident that it is the very place for the requirement. It is accessible, new, adaptable, cool, large enough and in every other particular just what is wanted."

Secretary Alien of the Convention Bureau had a talk with Mr. Helm to-night and afterwards said: "The Democrats now have no reason for running away from us. The only point Mr. Cook makes is that he wants a hall big enough to put 1,200 delegates in. We have now found a hall big enough for him. It is to be finished by May 27, which will be ample time for this convention, which is not until June &"

SENATE PASSES THE ARMY BILL.

icism of Treatment of Volunteers.

tors Protest Against the Profanity Going Into the Record.

Washington, May 2.—When the army appropriation bill was taken up in the Senate to-day Mr. Pettigrew continued his criticism of the treatment of the volunteer solidiers in the Philippins. He read a number of letters from members of the South Dakota Regiment complaining of their treatment to the contained profane expressions, which fact caused Mr. Gallinger to state a protest sgainst their being printed in the Record. Such language should, he said, be obnoxious to any man occupying a seat in the Senate.

To this Mr. Pettigrew replied that the letter of the South Dayon and when Mrs. McKelvey found that her daughter had been married outside the Sinate Committee Organizes.

The marriage that probably caused the principles of the Evolution was another day of elopements from mous vote a resolution opposing the Porto Ricca tariff.

These conditions were, he said, calculated to make men swear, but while the South Dakotans dropped occasionally into this bad habit it was still true that the religious sentiment was as strongly developed in them as in the yesterday.

Mr. Tillman and Mr. Pettigrew had a discussion as to affairs in the Philippines. Mr.
Pettigrew contended that no mere fragments of a tribe were opposed to the United States in the Philippines, but that the entire population was antagonistic. Only a small circle of the country around Manila had been conquered by our forces, and he asserted that a standing army of 100,009 men would be necessary to maintain order in the islands.

Travel Pay Amendment.

Mr. Teiler advocated the amendment for travel pay, saying that we could maintain an army in the Philippines only by pursuing a liberal policy. Suppose it did cost $\overline{a}$. (80).689—that was a mere bagatelle compared with the entire cost of the war. Mr. Teller said that he had been assured by an army officer who had but recently returned from the Philippines that we did not actually hold a district in the Island of Luzon bigger than the District of Columbia. This was no more territory than was held a year ago. He did not, he said, mention this fact as a crimination against the Government on this account, but, on the other hand, it was puerile to say that the money due the troops should be withheld for mere motives of economy.

Mr. Proctor read extracts from the report of the Adjutant General, explaining the circumstances under which travel pay had been allowed to some of the troops and withheld from others. He said that no military organization, as such, had received travel pay from Manila, but that such allowance had been made in many individual cases. The Asior Battery was composed largely, Mr. Proctor said, of men in the regular army, and, upon the whole, they had not fared so well as some of the pursity volunteer organizations.

Mr. Gallinger of New Hampshire said that some of the South Dakota soldiers were not disposed to object to the Government's treatment of them, and in support of this statement he read from an address by the Lieutenant Colonel of the South Dakota Regiment, in which he had said that he had yet to find a soldier who did not regard it as a personal insult to say that the United States were responsible for the Philippine War.

Mr. Pettigrew said that he had no information whether Lieutenant Colonel Stover had ever made the speech attributed to him, but, whether he made it or not, that gentleman could not have known who began the fighting, being several miles away. He had, he said, no controversy with Mr. Stover.

Washington, May 3.—"At a recent conference of administration men, during which the vice presidential situation was canvassed, Secretary Long voluntarily suggested that he was ineligible for this nomination on account of the Schley controversy. MISSOURI BAR MEETS. First Day of the Association's An-BEPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Kansas City, Mo., May 2.—The eighteenth annual meeting of the Missouri Bar Association began here to-day, with over 109 visiting judges and lawyers, and a large number of the members of the local bench and bar in attendance. Henry D. Ashley, president of the Kansas City Bar Association, delivered the welcoming address and was followed by George Robertson of Mexico, president of the State Association, who delivered his annual address.

The morning session was largely devoted to routine business, and the meeting in the afternoon was short, owing to the unavoidable ebsence through illness of Charles Claffin Allen of St. Louis, who was to read a paper on "Foderal Control of Trusts." The secretary was instructed to obtain a copy of the paper and to have it included in the printed record of the transactions of the association. F. L. Schoffeld of Hannibal read a paper on "Office Functions and Practice Before Masters in Chancery."

When the afternoon meeting adjourned the visiting attorneys were invited to drive out to the Country Club as the guests of the Kansas City Bar Association. To-night the visitors were the guests of honor at the last regular meeting for the year of the Kansas City Bar Association in the Commercial Clubrooms. At this meeting Justice W. C. Marshail of the Supreme Court delivered an address on "How the Supreme Court Can Catch Up With Its Docket." Oppression, Suffocation, Neuralgia, etc., cured by nual Session.
